LEADERSHIP IMPACT

Women who attend the New Leaders Program return to their roles with a game plan for advancement, a career-sustaining network of peers, and the self-assurance to contribute to their companies and their teams. They are ready to:

- Develop a strengths-based focus for leadership
- Negotiate for better outcomes
- Build a strategic network

“In my company, Smith programs are very prestigious. The curriculum, passionate faculty, and learning environment are all very impressive and top class. I believe this is the best program for women leaders. It inspires you, makes you more confident and builds your network.”

- Human Resources Director, Pharmaceuticals

WHO ATTENDS

Early career women, working in the public or private sectors across various industries. Participants seek a deeper understanding of business functions and to expand their capacity as leaders and managers.

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

New leaders who aspire to achieve their career advancement goals take a deep dive into their unique talents and explore how to leverage these for personal and professional success. They explore the ways that they can positively influence their career trajectory through self-management, skillful negotiation, and speaking the language of finance. Learning in an all-women classroom encourages emerging leaders to take risks and discuss the unique challenges they face as women.
